Parties close to agreement on deep well

BY JOAN PACE

The three parties involved in installation of a deep well in the Doherty Slough area are moving closer to approving contracts associated with the project, according to Norm Hall, supervisor pro tem at Monday night's Nameoki Township Board of Trustees meeting.

Hall said attorneys for the taxing bodies—Nameoki Township, the Metro East Sanitary District and the City of Granite City—are approving revisions within the agreement.

"THE PEOPLE in the area will be very involved in this project," said Hall. "Before the contracts are signed, we will have a meeting during which the people can ask questions of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers concerning the project."

Granite City, the trustee or treasurer to oversee the project will be from Nameoki Township.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board responded to a letter received from George Miller, executive director, Township Officials of Illinois, requesting support of a special fund.

The fund was established in order to expand the TOI's efforts in working toward reauthorization of federal revenue sharing and insurance reform.

The board allocated $10 for each of the nine elected township officials to go toward the TOI's special fund.

Tabled during the meeting was consideration of a full-service parts and labor contract with the Barcon Inc. Alarm Co. The contract will be discussed upon approval of the new town budget.

THE NEXT MEETING of the Nameoki Township Board has been moved from Monday, March 24, to Tuesday, March 25.

Following the regular meeting, the board will consider the Road District budget, which on that date will have been posted the necessary 30 days.

THE WINNING ENTRY of the third annual art show at Central Bank, 24th Street and Madison Avenue, is critiqued by Professor Joe Weber of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. The tempera painting by Granite City High School senior Patricia Scaturro earned her $100 from the bank and will be put on permanent display in the bank's lobby. More than 20 pieces of art by students at GCHS were judged by Weber Tuesday night at the bank. The winning entry depicts a country scene featuring a footbridge in the woods.

Phoenix having its own crisis

By Jack C. Vantimiglia

Executive editor

GRANITE CITY — Battered women turn to the Phoenix Crisis Center for shelter, but the center is having a crisis of its own.

Efforts on behalf of battered women, primarily from the Quad-City Area, could come for a screaming halt. Lack of money is the problem.

The United Methodist Churches in Granite City individuals and community organizations have pitched in to help in the months since the center opened a "safe house" for abused women and their children, but the money isn't enough and the center faces the prospect of closing.

In the Quad-City Area, police agencies and the courts have seen the center's work on behalf of women who've turned away from abusive spouses. The area needs the center, Mayor Von Dee Cruse said, and he's one of several persons who plan to help in "emergency roadblocks" to keep the center open.

"We're urging the people to help them with their roadblocks," Police Chief Bill Harris said.

The need is especially obvious to Harris. He said he's brought women to the shelter. "There is a need," he said. "We see it out on the streets all the time."

"It's this (roadblocks) or close the doors. The program can not be maintained without money," said Carol Chiappa, Phoenix assistant administrator.

Board members heard at a recent meeting that there are women who are on a waiting list to use the shelter, but it is full. Though fully utilized, the shelter must close its doors if it can not continue to meet its financial obligations, Chiappa said.

No board member wants to close the shelter and all hope grant applications made by the center will result in funds to keep it operating.

Roadblocks will be located at Niedringhaus and Madison Avenue, and at the Nameoki-Fehling-Johnson Triangle, Chiappa said. Hours are from 7-9 a.m. and 4-6 p.m. on Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Those wanting to help, or to use the shelter, are asked to call the Phoenix Crisis Center Inc. at 451-1008.

East Peoria model for Granite City

By BILL BAGBY

Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Redevelopment of East Peoria's downtown area is being used as a model for Granite City's downtown redevelopment program.

Jay Thompson, director of public affairs for East Peoria, presented a program Tuesday night on how his city is revamping its downtown area.

ABOUT 75 PERSONS, mostly business people and property owners, filled the courtroom at City Hall to hear Thompson's presentation and see photo slides of actual improvements that have been made.

Thompson said the Peoria City Council began to purchase property in the city's downtown area in the early 1970s.

"We just didn't do it for economic survival," he said. "We needed to create community pride."

ONE OF THE FIRST acquisitions the city made was a 2.5-acre area of land which once housed a grocery store. The building was converted into a new City Hall.

Other developments have brought a bank, grocery store, discount store and medical building to the town. Thompson said funding for the GRANITE CITY — The planned redevelopment of downtown Granite City came one step closer Tuesday evening.

Drawings with proposed renovation of the central business district.

prepared by Harland, Bartholomew and Associates of St. Louis, were received by Al Orbital, director of economic development for the city, an hour before a meeting with East Peoria's Jay Thompson.

land which once housed a grocery store. The building was converted into a new City Hall.

Other developments have brought a bank, grocery store, discount store and medical building to the town. Thompson said funding for the redevelopment came from a tax increment program which allowed the city to capture the increase in property tax revenue and borrow against it to raise funds.

EXISTING BUSINESSES in the area were willing to sell to the city, he said.

"Most of the business owners were ready to retire," he said, "and others were able to relocate."

Four tax increment districts were established in East Peoria's downtown area. These contained vacant or poorly maintained buildings.

Since the redevelopment, revenue from such areas have increased dramatically, according to Thompson.

GRANITE CITY — Dressed in robes of all colors and sandals covering bare feet, people gathered in the marketplace to look over wares while merchants counted their money.

Moneychangers paid out "denarii" while Roman tax collectors made sure Caesar received his share.

Beggars scurried with tin cups from person to person pleading with sad faces for money.

And among all of this, a barefoot man wearing a white robe named Jesus Christ told a parable about a father and his "prodigal son."

This was the scene 2,000 years ago when the marketplace was the center of Palestinian culture and economy.

And 2,000 years later, it was the scene of the "mini-market" held Sunday at the St. John United Church of Christ at 2901 Nameoki Road.

Children and youth ages 3 to 18 from the church's Sunday school department re-enacted the lifestyle and culture of the marketplace during the time of Jesus.

"This allows the kids to use their imagination and gives them a chance to just pretend," said Dan Sather, organizer of the mini-market and a student pastor at the church.

The idea for the program came from a church teachers' magazine, Sather said, and he decided to try it on a smaller scale.

"I wanted to shape an experience so they can learn the times of Jesus," he said.

The mini-market was designed on the same principal as the marketplace in Christ's time.

Children were given play wooden coins by the moneychangers which represented the "denarius," a Roman silver coin, which was considered a day's pay for labor.

"Children earned the money by attending Sunday school and making crafts," Sather said.

The children paid the tax collectors, which represented the Roman government, before they could go into the marketplace and buy homemade crafts.

"It's a real neat way to get into the scripture," said the Rev. Allen Reiter, pastor of the church. "It's more than simply listening; it's participating."

Modern images make it difficult to show the lifestyles of Christ's time, but the mini-market transported the children back 2,000 years.

"This introduces them to the culture so it won't be so foreign to them," Reiter said. "It will create images that they will carry with them."

"This introduces them to the culture so it won't be so foreign to them," Reiter said. "It will create images that they will carry with them."

But for the children, their trip back in time made more evident the advantages modern culture has on youth.

"It would be sort of nice to live back then," said Chris Sagovac, 12, of Troy. "But I like television and all that stuff."

"They just didn't have the stuff back then as we do now," said Mark Thornberry, 11, of Granite City.

"I wouldn't trade the lifestyles," said Chad Lane, 13, of Granite City. "But I would like to be around, him (Jesus)."

For one, however, the culture and the lifestyle of the marketplace were especially interesting.

"I wonder what it would be like just to live back then," said Chris Duckworth, 15, of Granite City.

The most difficult part in the program went to Duckworth. He portrayed Jesus Christ.

"I really feel honored," Duckworth said. "It feels different, like I really was him."

His performance showed it.

"There have already been people come up to me and talk about Jesus," Duckworth said.

Like Reiter, Duckworth said the mini-market was a way to bridge the gap between the times of Christ and today.

"This will help the kids and grown-ups know how the market went then; how they sold stuff and the real meaning of Jesus Christ," he said.

The modern age of the computer, video games and fast cars may appeal to today's youth, but Duckworth would give it all up to live in the days of Christ.

"I would like to experience it," he said. "I think it would really be great to speak to Jesus and learn God's way."

LeVault picks Fields, Wiese

Marty LeVault, a Democratic primary candidate for sheriff, has announced he would choose as his top administrators Jack Fields, currently chief jailer, and Sgt. John Wiese, currently of the Patrol Division.

"Fields has earned the respect of Sheriff's Department personnel as well as members of the criminal justice community throughout the area. He has excellent administrative skills and is very capable of increased responsibility," LeVault said.

"Sgt. Wiese is a 17-year veteran of the Patrol Division and is a resident of eastern Madison County. In his proposed position of commander of the Patrol Division, he would be able to deliver the protection which the rural areas need. Through John Wiese, I would be able to deliver the sense of security which has often been promised but never delivered to the rural residents."

LeVault has a bachelor's degree in criminal justice, nine years of varied experience on the Madison County sheriff's staff, and five years' administrative experience as supervisor of security for National Steel Corp. and as director of security at the U.S. Army St. Louis Area Support Center in Granite City.

"When Marty is elected sheriff, it will be because of his grassroots appeal to the voters, not because of political endorsement or a treasure chest of money with which to 'purchase' the office," a spokesman for his campaign committee said.

Labor group backs Miles, Ettimoff and Laub in board races

The Tri-City Trades and Labor Council Screening Committee on March 6 endorsed Morris Miles for the Madison County Board in District 16, Frank Laub in 19 and Vasil Ettimoff in 21.

The panel had met on Feb. 22 to screen and interview candidates running for County Board positions and for precinct committeemen.

"There were 19 people interviewed. The following received favorable endorsements from the committee and we recommend them," a council spokesman said.

Endorsed for Democratic committee posts were: Precinct 7, Beverly Schutzenhofer; 8, Joe Williams; 10, Hollis Donaldson; 12, Everett Morien; 14, Richard Schneider; 15, Jim Ortiz; 18, Sandy Pence; 21, Frank Laub; 30, Bob Bell; and 36, Bill Seago.

Lincoln Day speech in Bethalto Thompson ignites GOP interest in campaign

Gov. James Thompson gave "a whole" of a speech to GOP brethren Friday night, offering up a flurry of anti-Adlai remarks aimed at stirring interest in this fall's gubernatorial campaign.

A golden whale has quickly become the theme of Thompson's campaign as he capitalizes on a remark made several days ago by Democratic challenger Adlai Stevenson. During a recent name-calling exchange, Stevenson labeled Thompson a "big blubbering harpooned whale."

More than 900 persons — one of the largest crowds ever — attended the Madison County Republican's Central Committee's Lincoln Day Dinner at the Bethalto Knights of Columbus Hall. The attendance was as good if not better than the record-setting 1976 dinner, which Thompson also attended, said event general chairman Charlotte Longwisch.

"You remember the story of Captain Ahab and Moby Dick?" Thompson asked the crowd. Ahab was obsessed with destroying Moby Dick after the great white whale had bitten off his leg. But in the end, the whale dragged Ahab to the bottom of the sea. The governor put a modern interpretation on the classic tale. "In 1982, we bit off Adlai's leg; in 1986, we're going to take him to the bottom of the ocean."

The 1982 race against Stevenson was the closest in Illinois history, and Thompson reminded everyone that he and they as voters — couldn't take this fall's election for granted.

During his 20-minute speech, Thompson said the budget was introduced in the General Assembly holds back spending in every area "except education and economic development."

He said his Build Illinois program is an attempt to get the state weened from federal dollars. "I can't go to Washington with one hand up saying stop the deficit, and the other hand out. We have to stand on our own two feet."

His opponent has charged that Build Illinois is an idea that Stevenson developed during the '82 campaign, but Thompson said the original idea goes back to the Abraham Lincoln's Internal Improvements Act of 1833. "I didn't steal it from Adlai; I stole it from Abraham Lincoln."

He also lashed out at other Stevenson criticism. "Adlai hasn't had a single positive thing to say in his campaign. He is the single worst advertisement for Illinois that I know of."

Thompson's recent and forthcoming trips to the Orient have also been criticized by Stevenson, who supposedly has said that he would stay in Illinois and wait for business to come to him. Thompson's response: "You'll have a long wait, Adlai, because that's not how the world works anymore."

The governor said he had talked to someone in the audience earlier in the evening who had gone back to work at Owens-Illinois Co. after a two-year layoff, thanks to O-I business brought in by a special contract with the government of China. Thompson said his trip to that country was the reason. "And I'm proud of that."

A plane trip to California forced Thompson to give his speech early and leave immediately.

Others on the program were Secretary of State James Edgar and candidates in state and local elections, among them 21st District challenger Robert Gaffner, state Rep. Judy Koehler, U.S. Senate challenger George A. Ranney, attorney general candidate James Ryan and several others. The 1986 media award went to John B. Prentiss, publisher of the newly resurrected St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Suggestion award plan is on 'hold'

SPRINGFIELD — A program to encourage state employees to help improve the efficiency of their agencies has been held up by inaction on the part of the four legislative leaders.

None of the four leaders has yet appointed a member to the State Employee Suggestion Award Board, a reward program for employee suggestions that save the state money.

"I'd like to get it going," said state Rep. Michael Curran, D-Springfield, a cosponsor of the program. "I think it's an awfully good idea. The leaders may have agreed to all submit their appointments on the same day."

Legislation establishing the board was enacted last September, but the program cannot be put in place because no members of the board have been appointed.

Each leader — the Senate president, House speaker and the minority leaders of each chamber — is to appoint two members of the eight-member board, which also consists of the directors of the Department of Central Management Services and the Bureau of the Budget, who will serve ex-officio.

It's not that the four leaders don't have more important things to worry about than who gets appointed to the multitude of state panels they are responsible for keeping at full complement. But the delay in getting the suggestion award board established is an example of how some worthwhile state programs can get frozen in time. Board and commission vacancies have been known to remain open for up to six months in state government.

In the case of the suggestion program, the delay is regrettable. Government provides goods and services that don't make a profit, so it's not like a regular business. But government can learn management techniques from the private sector.

Modern managers encourage employee participation in decision making and create incentives for productivity.

The just what the state employee suggestion program would do. State workers who have an idea that can save the state money can get a cash bonus for making the suggestion.

"You encourage people to feel part of the system," Curran said. "They can use their intellect, their imagination, their calculation, and be rewarded for it."

Bette Brodbeck of the Department of Central Management Services says CMS has already received suggestions from seven state workers, despite the fact that the program has not been publicized.

"We've had to notify them that their suggestions will remain on file awaiting the appointment of the suggestion award board," she said.

Price - no reservations

Several determinations go into hiring an employee. High on the list of questions to ask oneself about an applicant is if he has experience. Related experience is helpful, but the best prospective employee is one already doing exactly the type of work required. If already working, another important point is whether the applicant is doing a good job for his employer. References are also important. They tell an employer what kind of employee the applicant is. Finally, it's vital for the applicant to care about the job. He should be willing to put everything he has into it. To sum it up, Help Wanted, Public Servant: experienced, effective person. References required. Love of job essential. Apply to the voters in the 21st Congressional District during voting hours on Tuesday, March 18 for the job of United States Congressman. There are several fine applicants running in the Democratic Primary, but you can cast only one vote. We think that vote should go to Mel Price. His experience no one dares dispute. After 21 terms in the Congress, his background is without equal in this district. His employer, the district's electorate, should feel satisfied with his work. On the personal level, his warmth and care for the district was demonstrated when he appeared in Granite City Friday evening to take time for a high school art show; conversing and admiring the work of the youngsters. He laughed with one of the winners and posed with her for a newspaper photo. Afterward, this powerful man, this man who's dealt with presidents here and abroad, got back into the pose with the same girl because a lady with an instant camera had missed the first shot. That's the kind of man Price is. On the performance level, earlier the same day he was present for the groundbreaking ceremony at the new $2 million federal courthouse building in East St. Louis. In the same town, due in part to his support, the St. Louis Gateway Arch grounds will be extended to this side of the river — another multi-million dollar project. His accomplishments are many, not the least of which include his efforts to build and maintain Scott Air Force Base near Belleville and the St. Louis Army Support Center in Granite City.

Is Price doing the job? You bet he is. References are important for a prospective employee. These are some for Price: Illinois Sen. Jim McPike, Alton; Illinois Sen. Sam Vadalabene, Edwardsville; Illinois Rep. Sam Wolf, Granite City; Granite City Mayor Von Dee Cruse; Collinsville Mayor Gene Brombolich; the party central committees of St. Clair and Madison counties; union groups; and on and on. Price is a man who has done the job because he loves it. His smile is genuine, just as his concern for the people in this district is genuine. After 21 terms in Congress, it's not ambition that's driving Price toward a 22nd term. Though some of the other candidates have strong points, including their comparative youth, Price is beyond question the most qualified and capable man the Democratic Party has to offer for the job. Personal conversations with the man about the issues reveal he still has the stuff it takes to push for the 21st Congressional District. When it comes to a review of the applicants, it's still Mel Price for Congress.

Donnewald understands downstate Ill. needs

To The Editor:
All of us here in downstate Illinois want to be remembered and fairly represented by our state government officials. A man we can count on is James H. Donnewald, candidate for re-election as state treasurer. We can count on Donnewald because he has served us well for 22 years. Equally important to us, he is a lifetime resident of downstate Illinois. Therefore, he has a very personal reason for caring about what happens here.

Born in Carlyle, Donnewald has been a businessman and developer in Breese, plus a legislator from his area for 22 consecutive years. After attending St. Louis University, he graduated from Lincoln College of Law and then began his law practice in Breese, where he has maintained a law office ever since. Donnewald has offered us many years of service, acting as Democratic precinct committeeman, Carlyle Township supervisor, two terms in the Illinois House of Representatives, as well as the Illinois Senate until 1982. In November 1982, Donnewald was elected treasurer by the unprecedented plurality of 367,322 votes. Donnewald has remembered us for years and we cannot afford to forget him on election day. We must re-elect our only downstate candidate for a state government office, James H. Donnewald, state treasurer.

LeVault has experience with sheriff staff

To The Editor:
The past couple of issues have featured letters to the editor regarding a candidate for sheriff. The letters spoke of that candidate's qualifications and indicated he was the only candidate with experience in the department. We question this. He is not the only one. Marty LeVault served as a member of the Sheriff's Department for 9½ years prior to accepting a position in the private sector. LeVault received his two college degrees while working full-time to support his family. His experience in private industry in supervisory and management positions enhance his qualifications for the office of sheriff. LeVault was the first candidate to express his concerns for what he thought were important issues that the taxpayers should be aware of. Most of the candidates, early in the campaign, said they saw no problems in the sheriff's operation.

Candidate LeVault exposed the real issues, and since then all the other candidates have mimicked his ideas. We have known Mr. LeVault personally for a number of years. His background and reputation for fairness and honesty are assets that should not be overlooked by the voting public. He is a man who will address the needs and concerns of the public. DUKE AND LOUISE WADE

Candidate wants to avoid political influence

To The Editor:
I would like to respond to the letter written by Acting Chief Don Sandridge of the Alton Police Department regarding the endorsement of candidate Astorian. Mr. Sandridge is either misinformed or trying to make fools of our voting public. He implied that all the candidates were seeking the Democratic Central Committee endorsement and that we were all willing to pay the "political lug" for the endorsement. I cannot speak for the other candidates, but I have stated publicly that I did seek the endorsement of the Central Committee. However, the handful of politicians who apparently control the committee saw fit not to even screen the candidates. I have also stated publicly I was not willing to pay a political lug to get an endorsement. My objective in running for the office of sheriff was to improve the administration of the department, whereby the citizens of Madison County receive better services for their tax dollar. I do not wish to be a puppet to a handful of politicians who might like to be able to control the sheriff. The only group that I desire to answer to as sheriff is the taxpayers of Madison County. Mr. Sandridge forgot to mention in his letter to you and the taxpayers that he has been offered the position of chief deputy in candidate Astorian's administration. I think we can see all his motives.

Sterling would be active Republican leader

To The Editor:
I'm just wild about Harry, Harry Sterling, that is. It seems things can get only so bad, and then someone comes along who can turn things around. If ever that was needed, now is the time for the Republican Party in our area to turn around. Harry is a candidate for Republican state central committeeman in the March 18 primary. His election would signal a new era of activity and accomplishment, not only for the party but for the entire electorate of the 21st Congressional District — most of St. Clair County, parts of Clinton and Montgomery counties, and all of Madison and Bond counties. How great it would be to see our area revitalized during the integral part of county and state politics. As President Reagan so aptly phrases it — we need to participate in county, state and national politics from our base of strength. Harry as a man and an attorney — and foremost as a Republican — embodies this philosophy. He wants to open the party to all; young and old, black and white, liberal and conservative, Republicans, Independents and unhappy Democrats. He wants them all so he can mold from their individual talents and opinions a strong voice to be a viable source that Springfield will be happy to accommodate, thus insuring our fair share of political decisions affecting us. To ignite the fuse to this new era, we must start at the beginning and elect leadership, not complacency. His opponent has a record of non-accomplishment in the 10 years he has served as Madison County party chairman. JOSEPH J. FRANO

Bob Astorian is highly professional officer

To The Editor:
I am sure a lot of the voters for Madison County are undecided about who to vote for, for sheriff. There has been a lot of talk by the candidates of their qualifications and of their present jobs. Voters might ask the deputies how long they have been deputies. Have they taken promotional tests? What happened? Why weren't they promoted? These tests are required to be given every three years in the cities of Alton and Granite City. Also, the police chief's job is not a promotional job. It is the political appointment of the mayor, with the concurrence of the council or board. Check the records, or ask someone in the political arena that you trust; they have these same people done in the last 20 years? Then, make your decision. We were the police commissioners in Granite City during the years 1973 through April 1985. We tested Bob Astorian many times. We saw him promoted from patrolman to sergeant to lieutenant, to captain, and then finally to lieutenant colonel

(assistant chief). These promotions were all made through the testing procedure. He normally finished the test before other candidates and finished higher than the others. There is no question of his ability, honesty or integrity. We, the past commissioners of Granite City, recommend strongly Bob Astorian for sheriff of Madison County. WELDON BURCH

Doctor favoring LeVault for sheriff

To The Editor:
When someone sees an endorsement for a politician they feel that it is just another effort to sway your vote without any particular concern for the matters at hand. I can assure you this is not the case in my recommending Marty LeVault for sheriff of Madison County. In all the years I have practiced in Granite City, no one has ever seen me take such a stand for a political office. Readers, your vote should not be treated lightly by you, either. I think the office of the sheriff is extremely important to everyone. To all the residents of the county, the business people of the county, and the employees that work in the department. I have two sons in law enforcement. One was a deputy in Madison County and he has now been retired with a disability received while performing his duties as a deputy, so what takes place in a law enforcement department is not foreign to me. I endorse LeVault for sheriff. I sincerely believe he will be good for the county, for the men who have to get out and enforce the law, and for everyone concerned. DR. W.B. HEIDKE

Record numbers hunt control areas

The Illinois Department of Conservation's controlled hunting program provided more hunting opportunities than ever before during the 1985 season, according to John Hott, assistant manager of DOC's controlled hunting program.

It served 41,903 hunters at 14 sites. In 1984, the program served 41,641 hunters.

Eight controlled hunting areas attracted 32,670 hunters. Another 9,729 hunters utilized the six quail and pheasant hunting areas, and 504 youngsters participated in the 1985 Youth Pheasant Hunt.

Hott said the department released 72,376 adult pheasants during the controlled season and 49,652 were harvested, a 69 percent rate. Hunter success varied from area to area, with the average being 1.5 pheasants per hunter. Chain O'Lakes was low with a 1.2 average, while Wayne Fitzgerald was high with a 1.67 average.

The six quail and pheasant hunting areas all showed increased use. The 8,729 hunters using the areas harvested 8,206 quail and 9,456 pheasants. The DOC released 13,773 quail and 16,240 pheasants on these sites.

Hunter success was .94 quail and 1.08 pheasants per hunter. Hunters also harvested 856 rabbits, seven woodcock and one Hungarian partridge.

The 1985 Illinois Youth Hunt attracted 594 participants under 16 years of age who hunted on the eight controlled areas, Hott said. They recorded a 28 percent harvest rate, taking 611 pheasants of the 2,209 released. Hunter success ranged from a high of 1.76 pheasants at Carlyle Reservoir to a low of .66 pheasants per hunter at Chain O'Lakes State Park.

Candidates unanimous in backing divestiture

SPRINGFIELD — With all the candidates for two state posts taking the stand for divesting state funds from the Republic of South Africa, the topic is bound to be looked upon by state lawmakers again this year.

The divestiture issue was considered last year without much success. Several proposals were put forth to the General Assembly last year asking for roughly the same thing — that the state treasurer be prohibited from investing state pension funds in firms with ties to South Africa. The bills went nowhere.

The sticking points that some parties contend drove divestiture down and will again are: a) it may hurt investment returns for state pensions, and b) many legislators will not go for it.

But, as State Comptroller Roland Burris argues, there are 14 other states and 100 universities in the United States that have successfully divested their funds and have not suffered any economic hardship.

Nonetheless, last year several business lobbyist lined up to tell legislators that the proposals to divest would hurt the state financially, and in April they had a report to back it up.

Three of the bills were analyzed by the Illinois Economic and Fiscal Commission, and the commission found that divestiture could possibly result in less diversification of investments. This in turn could affect long-term rates of return for pension funds or cause lower rates of return on investments.

Deputy Director of IEFRC Robert Brock said beside the long-term affects specified in the reports, divestiture would cost the state money to implement and maintain.

Block said divesting methodically, as most candidates suggest, probably would not have any adverse affect on the rate of return for investments than if divestment occurred tomorrow.

Even with the report's warnings, the four candidates for state treasurer and the two candidates for state comptroller all have endorsed divestiture and believe that it can be done without much financial impact to the state.

Some of these candidates want a change in the pension code, as the previously produced legislation specified. Under the state's current pension code, the investment of pension moneys is supposed to be done with the only concern being the highest return possible. Whether the investment is made in companies that do business with a country that supports racial or social injustice is not relevant.

Don Schaefer, spokesman for Burris, said the state — through its five retirement systems — has almost $11 billion invested in companies based in South Africa or doing business with that country.

Pat Quinn, one of three Democrats vying for the treasurer post, has spoken out in support of divestiture and wants to phase out by 1990 all investments with South Africa.

Brian Hamer, spokesman for Quinn, said divestiture is a realistic goal. "Really, the loss on investments would be minimal."

He noted that representatives in Massachusetts, which has chosen to divest, said the state has been able to find better investments since it stopped investing in business tied to South Africa.

Hamer contends that the IEFRC report is inaccurate and, possibly, the rate of return on investments could be greater after divestiture. "What the report shows is a lack of creativity in investing state funds," he said. "They could get a return at the same rate, if not a greater rate."

He added that, as the IEFRC report claims, it would cost the state some money to divest, but that money could be made up if better investments were made.

Some of the investments could be made in Illinois firms rather than those investing in corporations tied to South Africa, Hamer said.

State Treasurer James Donnewald and Burris are both opposed to South Africa's apartheid government, and both agree that the state should divest.

But, where Burris is adamant about his opposition to the state investing its moneys in South Africa, Donnewald is more cautious.

Deputy State Treasurer Robert O'Keefe said Donnewald is for divestiture, but he also is at the mercy of what the General Assembly decides and has to obey its legislation.

Also, Donnewald has yet to ask the State Employee Retirement Board to divest itself in corporations doing business with South Africa, as Burris has.

Burris said he is opposed to rushing into divestiture, but would rather see — like Quinn — phasing out of investments with companies tied to South Africa.

"It should be done, but done without damaging the earnings on the interest to the pension funds," Burris said.

Burris's opposition in November's general election, State Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis, R-Zion, said she also is in favor of easing into divestiture.

She said President Reagan should prepare a fact-finding commission to investigate what affect divestiture would have on South African blacks and the fiscal health of the United States.

"I am opposed to apartheid," she said. "But we have so many state pensions tied up with our investments. We wouldn't like to cut off our nose in spite of our face."

She said she also was concerned that divestiture could hurt the employment of blacks in South Africa.

Springfield Mayor Michael Houston, the GOP's candidate for treasurer, has joined in the cautious divestiture chorus.

"As the state's banker I think the treasurer must make certain that the divestiture is handled in an orderly manner," Houston said in a statement.

State's 'deep pockets' targeted in lawsuits

By John O'Connor
Copley News Service

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. James Thompson is in court every day, figuratively at least.

He's not accused of a crime. And he's not playing his well-documented skills as a trial lawyer. But he is named as a defendant in some of the more than 3,000 lawsuits filed against Illinois in the state Court of Claims last year.

Based on averages of the past several years, the state is involved in 3,875 cases annually. In 1985, Illinois was the defendant in 30 percent of those cases. People sue the state for many reasons, ranging from alleged discrimination to claims of poor-quality soap in Illinois' prisons. The plaintiffs vary greatly, too. They can be anyone from a state employee to any of Illinois' sister states.

Action takes place daily in state and federal courtrooms, where lawyers for the Illinois attorney general attempt to save the state from conviction — and judgments that could cost the state thousands of dollars in damage payments.

"It's what we call, in the legal profession, 'deep pockets,'" said First Assistant Attorney General Robert Shuff. "Most people see the state's money as endless. They think it should be easy to get at because it's a faceless entity."

"Nobody has to dig deep into their pocket to bring it out. Everybody digs deep on payday — when they take it out of your check — but no one person has to dig in."

Much litigation involving the state is brought before the Court of Claims. The five-judge special court deals with disputes in five areas, including contracts with the state and alleged wrongdoings by state employees.

In 1975, 1,551 lawsuits were filed against the state. In recent years, however, the total has climbed as high as 3,100 cases filed in a year with the Court of Claims alone. Although most of those suits are eventually dismissed, 400 to 600 of them require hearings by the court, Shuff said.

It wasn't always that way. Illinois once was protected from lawsuits under the common-law concept of "sovereign immunity." The state had to agree to a suit, and it was handled by the Legislature, either through the legislative commission or, later, through the claims commission. When a judgment was rendered against the state by one of these groups, the Legislature would pass a bill to pay a damage award.

In 1945, the General Assembly passed the Court of Claims Act, but decisions that go against the state still require legislative appropriation.

The 1970 constitution eliminated Illinois' sovereign immunity, but allowed the Legislature to specify types of cases in which the state was immune. The General Assembly responded in 1971 by reinstating full protection after failing to develop an alternative.

Sovereign immunity lost some of its strength when courts ruled employees of Illinois who cause accidents while driving state-owned cars are acting as individuals, not state employees. As a result, the courts said, individuals can be sued outside the Court of Claims, but damages are paid by the state.

Another frequent automobile case involves people convicted of driving under the influence who sue the state for poor road conditions.

"They'll say the road is defectively designed, that there's a rut or a curve that caused the accident," said Jerry Owens, spokesman for the attorney general's office.

Other times, drivers who have an accident after failing to yield at a stop sign will claim in court that the state was negligent in not installing a stop light.

A more general reason behind the increasing numbers of lawsuits against Illinois has been a heightening of awareness about civil rights, Shuff said.

"The public is much more aware of what their rights are," he said. "When I was young, people just never even thought about going to a lawyer."

Bill Ghesquiere, chief counsel to the governor, said alleged violations of people's rights figure prominently in many suits against the state — especially since the re-emergence of federal laws enacted more than a century ago to protect constitutional rights.

"There is a series of statutes in the U.S. Code that says no one acting under the color of state law can violate anyone's constitutional rights, and if they do, the state can be liable for damages," Ghesquiere said. "They were passed in 1871, but someone just discovered them (in the last decade or two). They were dormant, they weren't used as tools."

Since then, it's been a "huge olive tree that's grown" as more and more lawyers file suits.

"We have a lot of suits brought by big law firms on behalf of prisoners," Ghesquiere said. "It's good for their image, and it's a chance for their younger associates to get trial practice."

Shuff said he doesn't know which came first, "more lawyers or more litigation, but there's a lawyer on every street corner."

"Lawyers have to make a buck. The way they make a buck is filing lawsuits, and there's a lot more lawyers."

The result is a plethora of civil rights and other sexual or racial discrimination suits against the state, brought by "employees dissatisfied with their salaries or who failed to get a promotion," Ghesquiere said. "Any entity with a large body of employees can expect that."

Illinois' prisons generate a lot of suits because prisoners tend to study the law and are more apt to ask the courts to address their grievances, Ghesquiere said.

Shuff agreed: "We've actually been sued for the quality of soap in the prisons." That case was dismissed from federal court in Danville several years ago.

Another time, a prisoner claimed he was treated poorly by a guard and asked for $5 million in damages. However, the prisoner filed the suit with the Court of Claims, which only hears suits that ask for $100,000 or less in damage payments. The $5 million suit was dismissed immediately.

Neighboring states also have brought litigation against the state. Illinois' sisters have gone to federal court against her, and may again if Kentucky and Illinois can't settle a border question.

"It's very important to us because of the vast amounts of minerals in southern Illinois," said Shuff, who added that Illinois generally has good relations with its neighbors.

Some cases can leave the state wrestling with itself.

Shuff said his office has to both defend state government and prosecute on behalf of the people.

In one continuing case near Alton, three departments of the attorney general's office are competing against one another. The state wants to build a highway through two pieces of land dedicated to charitable use.

"Our charitable trust division is told it's their job to fight for the charitable use of that land, because it was given in charity," Shuff said. "Our land acquisition division's job is to represent the Department of Transportation in the acquisition of that land, and our general law division was in there fending off suits brought by other interested parties."

HOUSEHOLD
POISONS

Consider the great number of poisonous substances which are on hand in most homes: washing soda, drain cleaners, chlorine bleach, polishes, ammonia, lye, insecticides, rat poison, paints and turpentine, sprays, disinfectants. Parents must be careful to keep poisonous substances out of children's reach in a locked cabinet. They should be promptly destroyed, rather than stored, when the need for each has passed.

Engineer says jail is safe

A consulting engineer who did a free visual inspection of the Madison County Jail has concluded the building is sound.

"It is my opinion the building is in very good structural condition," structural engineer Robert MacDermott wrote in a report. "The main concern should be the complete repair of the roofing membrane to stop all rainwater leakage."

MacDermott, of Kirkwood, toured the jail Feb. 10. He said he visually inspected part of the inside of the building and all of the exterior walls. MacDermott said some wall cracks could be attributed to shrinkage but that "the major shrinkage is now complete." Some floor cracks also could be attributed to shrinkage and most are minor, he added. Concrete slab movement at construction joints also could be a cause, he said.

The reinforced-concrete jail in Edwardsville, was completed in 1980 at a cost of $5 million. It was designed by Henry R. Gabriel & Associates, Granite City. The contractor was S.M. Wilson & Co., Granite City.

Herbert "Junior" Milton, chairman of the County Board's Buildings Committee, said MacDermott did the inspection at his request for free "because I told him we didn't have any money."

Milton said MacDermott is an acquaintance of his and agreed to do "a little community service work. I thought it was very nice of him because he is well qualified."

Milton said after a Buildings Committee meeting March 10 that he is satisfied with the report. Sheriff Emil Toffant was to receive a copy. Toffant in January said he feared the building was not sound because of cracks in floors and walls and roof leakage. He said he believed "the defects are so serious that the Madison County Board would be well advised to retain the services of a professional structural engineer."

The Buildings Committee toured the jail with Gabriel of the architectural firm. Milton has maintained that the building is sound. He said he requested engineering services to satisfy Toffant.

Toffant also has complained of roof leakage. Debris is being removed so patching can follow.

DUI arrests up last year

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois motorists in their 20s were arrested for drunk driving by the state police more often than any other age group last year, according to state police records.

Intoxicated drivers in that age group accounted for 45 percent of the total DUI arrests last year. The Illinois State Police issued citations to 2,707 drunk drivers between the ages of 21 and 25, and 2,335 citations to drivers in the 26 to 30 age group. There were a total of 11,095 DUI arrests in the state, according to the State Police Breath Analysis Section.

The state police figure does not include arrests made by local law enforcement agencies.

The state police issued 150 more drunk-driving citations in January 1986 than in January 1985; 764 citations were issued in January 1986 and 614 in January 1985, according to records of the Breath Analysis Section.

Robert Campbell, director of the Breath Analysis Section, said the increase in the number of DUI arrests was due to an improved field sobriety test used by state troopers to identify drunk drivers.

"The test isn't subjective now," Campbell said.

Officers use a field sobriety test to spot specific errors that are often made by drivers who have blood-alcohol contents of .10 or above, Campbell said.

If a motorist commits two errors on the walk-and-turn part of the test, for instance, an officer can be sure that, 68 percent of the time, the person has a blood alcohol content of .10 or above, Campbell said.

State police issued DUI citations to people whose blood alcohol content averaged 19 before using the improved sobriety test. The average now is .16, which means that officers are better at identifying people who are driving drunk, according to Campbell.

"We're identifying people we couldn't before," he said.

The sobriety test consists of a series of exercises that gauge an individual's ability to perform different simple tasks at once. The test consists of a walk and turn, a horizontal gaze nystagmus, a one-leg stand and a finger-to-nose test, Campbell said.

The field sobriety test was developed through research done by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. The state finished a training program begun in 1984, according to Campbell.

"Illinois was the first state police agency in the country to be completely trained in the field sobriety test," Campbell said.

The Implied Consent Division of the Illinois Public Health Department, which certifies the equipment used by law enforcement agents in testing for blood-alcohol levels, reported that local law enforcement agencies had 46,527 DUI arrests and administered 35,779 breath tests. These figures do not include the state police DUI arrests.

William Brey, Implied Consent Division chief, said the division is still compiling 1985 figures.

GC MAN SERVED 4 WARRANTS

Baby scale important

A cheap, sturdy baby scale that can be made easily in developing countries has been announced by the United Nations' Children's Fund. A Kenyan manufacturer estimates he can make the new "hanging spring balance" scale for the equivalent of $4 (U.S. currency).

Monitoring a baby's weight and then plotting changes on a growth chart is the best way to catch malnutrition at an early stage.

Grants may help fund DUI crackdown, juvenile justice

The problem of paying for state-ordered programs may be partly solved.

State Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City, has proved a two-part plan designed to help alleviate the costs to local governments for state mandated programs, specifically criminal justice and law enforcement programs.

"The criminal justice grant program announced by House Speaker Michael J. Madigan is desperately needed by local governments to pay for the rising costs of fighting crime," Wolf said. "Since much of the increased costs are due to state mandated programs, the state should bear some of the costs."

"Programs that would be eligible for grants include a crackdown on drunk drivers, improvements in the juvenile justice system, and prosecution of those who fail to make child support payments."

Wolf said a measure to be introduced this spring will contain $20 million for fiscal 1987, allocated on a per-capita basis.

"The disbursement to counties for mandated programs will free up local dollars for other related law enforcement activities," he said.

The second part of the plan would expand the grant program to other mandated programs in future years, provided state dollars are available.

Wolf said, "In recent years, state mandated programs have gotten out of control."

"It is time for the state to take responsibility for these costs."

Men barred from hearing aid business

GRANITE CITY — Two Granite City men have been barred by the Illinois Department of Public Health from selling or fitting hearing aids.

Barred are Lacy L. Boyer Jr., of 2312 State St. and Clarence McCoy of 2048 State St., according to Dr. Bernard J. Turnock, director of the IDPH.

Boyer's application was denied because he failed to disclose information to the IDPH of a 1982 default judgment which said he violated a section of the Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act.

The judgment also restrained Boyer from certain acts in violation of Federal Trade Commission rules. McCoy's application was denied based upon a 1979 judgment against him where contracts entered into between McCoy and consumers were found to be in violation of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act.

The judgment ordered those contracts rescinded and imposed a fine of $5,000 along with restrictions from certain practices.

A Belleville man, William L. Boyer, and three others were barred from the hearing aid business.

The denials are based on guidelines set under the Hearing Aid Consumer Protection Act, which became effective Jan. 1, 1983. These denials are the first which have been issued by the department since the act went into effect, according to Turnock.

Lincoln law office is newest historical site

When (he) reached the office about 9 o'clock in the morning, the first thing he did was to pick up a newspaper, spread himself out on an old sofa, one leg on a chair, and read aloud, much to my discomfort. This habit used to annoy me almost beyond the point of endurance.

By Doug Finkle
Copley News Service

SPRINGFIELD — The author is William Herndon, describing a normal morning in his law office with his partner, Abraham Lincoln.

Lincoln, Herndon wrote, said he liked to read aloud because it engaged two senses at once — sight and hearing. The combination enabled Lincoln to better remember what he read.

The combination also often drove Herndon out of the room until Lincoln finished his newspaper.

A sofa or cot for the morning newspaper reading was a fixture in every Lincoln law office, according to Robert Coomer, superintendent of historic sites for the newly created state Historic Preservation Agency.

That is why there is a cot in the Lincoln-Herndon Law Offices at Sixth and Adams streets here, the newest historic site acquired by the state of Illinois. It apparently is the only remaining law office where Lincoln worked, out of at least four that historians know about.

"What makes this unique is, certainly, that Lincoln was associated with the building," Coomer says. "This is where he developed. This is where he learned. This is where he gained experience to be president of the United States."

It is also where, legend has it, the floors were so dirty that tree seeds once sprouted in Lincoln's office.

"We've cleaned it up considerably," Coomer said. "I don't think the public could relate in quite that graphic a historical sense."

What the public won't see when the building reopens Feb. 12 are large-scale changes in the third-floor law offices or in the second-floor federal courtrooms. The upper two floors were restored by the previous owners in the 1960s, and they will remain largely as they have been in recent years.

The state has appropriated $250,000 to renovate the building, but most of that money will be spent on revamping the electrical and heating system and similar repairs.

The biggest visible changes are on the first floor, where an information center and a slide show will give people an idea of what they will see on their tour of the building. And there will be the tour itself.

Under the previous owners, the James Myers family, paid staff members gave a brief introduction to the building on the first floor. Visitors were allowed to roam the upper two floors on their own.

The state will rely on volunteers to take small groups through the entire building. After an eight-minute slide show on the first floor, tourists will be taken to the upper floors. There, each room will serve as a launch for a talk about some aspect of Springfield life in the 1840s.

In one room, for example, people will learn that the sparse furnishings were not because the state ran out of money to buy antiques.

"The office is drab because (offices) were drab," Coomer said. "Basically, a business or commercial venture was the man's world. By contrast, what you find in Lincoln's home are curtains and floor coverings. The chairs would match, unlike this. This was very plain, very drab, compared to what you would find where people resided."

Lincoln's own office was in the highly desirable northeast corner of the building. From it he could see the state Capitol to the north and the American House hotel to the east. Lincoln could literally stand in his window, then rush downstairs when he saw clients he needed to talk to.

The cot, like the other furnishings in the offices, is not an original piece of Lincoln Law Office furniture, but is from the same period. The only exception is a desk, in storage, that is reputed to actually have been used by Lincoln (State historians have not yet documented the claim.)

The desk is really more of a table with spaces for two drawers, which are missing. A separate cabinet with glass-paneled doors is supposed to sit on top of the table. Both need extensive restoration work before they can be put on display.

In addition to the furnishings, the state obtained a number of documents and photographs when it purchased the building. No decision has been made whether those will be displayed, Coomer said.

January 13, 1986

Dear Citizens:

My second term as your Madison County Sheriff will shortly end. I have tried and I believe, succeeded in keeping politics out of the Madison County Sheriff's Office.

Independent Democrats, as myself, and other Madison County office holders, have succeeded in keeping their offices free of undue influence and interference of the Madison County Democratic machine.

Recently, the machine politician, in closed-door sessions, have decided to make an all-out effort to gain control of the Madison County Sheriff's Office. He must not let this happen.

Therefore, I am supporting Bob Churchich, a career professional police officer. Bob's leadership is characterized by honesty, fairness and integrity. He will maintain professionalism in the sheriff's office free of the interference and influence of a political machine.

A vote for Bob Churchich is a vote to keep Madison County a good clean place to live. I greatly appreciate the support you have given me in the past and now I am asking that you give that same support to Bob Churchich on March 18, 1986. The Democrat primary election is by voting for an Independent Democrat for Sheriff, Bob Churchich.

Cardinal film gets us set for baseball

With the high school basketball season now over for our area, it is time to go outdoors and crank up the spring sports season.

Spring means boys' baseball, girls' softball, track and tennis. It is another very exciting season for high school fans, but to a great number of people in this part of the country, spring means only one thing.

Baseball / Cardinal baseball, that is.

As the Cardinals get ready in Florida to defend their National League title, the weather up here is still trying to decide if winter has gone or will stay around for one more blast. That makes it a little harder to really get ready for baseball.

But for the real Cardinal fan, there is one thing that will get you ready in a hurry. "The St. Louis Cardinals / The Movie" has been on the market for over a year now and has done very well saleswise. There is a good reason for that. It is one fine piece of film making.

Produced by Larry Miller, a St. Louis-area producer, the 90-minute film, available on videocassette, traces 109 years of Cardinal history. For those of you with a keen sense of that history, it is a must-see.

The Cardinals have won 14 pennants and nine World Series. All but one of those pennants (last year's) is neatly and poetically described. Interviews with St. Louis sports writer Bob Grogan, baseball historian Martin Quigley and Hall of Famer James "Cool Papa" Bell are included, as are profiles of Cardinal greats such as Rogers Hornsby, Bob Gibson, Lou Brock and the greatest of them all, Stan Musial.

There is also a hilarious interview done more than 10 years ago with the late Dizzy Dean and Casey Stengel.

But the film really comes together when World Series are discussed. The Cardinals' Series history is greater than anyone's except the New York Yankees, who have won six incredible 22 Series in 33 attempts. The Dodgers have won more National League flags, but have lost 12 of the 17 Series they have been in.

To me, the music dubbed over the Series highlights sets the perfect mood as the Cardinals perform in the Fall Classic.

Listen to Louis Armstrong sing "Red, Red Robin" as you learn about the heroes of the Cardinals' first title in 1926, when they beat Babe Ruth and the Yankees in seven games. Grover Cleveland Alexander, Jesse Haines, Rogers Hornsby, Jim Bottomley...

The Cardinals fell to the Yanks in 1928 and again to the Philadelphia Athletics in 1930, but got their revenge on Connie Mack's A's in 1931, led by Missouri's own Pepper Martin, "The Wild Horse of the Osage."

Listen to the "Wabash Cannonball" as the Gas House Gang of 1934 overcomes the Detroit Tigers in another seven-game Series. Dizzy Dean, Joe Medwick, Frankie Frisch, Rip Collins, Leo Durocher...

Listen to the theme song (a crazy backwoods tune called "Pass the Biscuits, Miranda") of the 1942 St. Louis Swifties, maybe the best Cardinal team ever (105-49) as they beat the favored Yankees in five games. Stan Musial, Marty Marion, Whitey Kurowski...

After a 1943 loss to the Yankees, listen to Glenn Miller's "In the Mood" as the Cardinals defeat the St. Louis Browns four games to two in the only all-St. Louis Series in 1944. Ray Sanders, Blix Donnelly, Walker Cooper, Terry Moore...

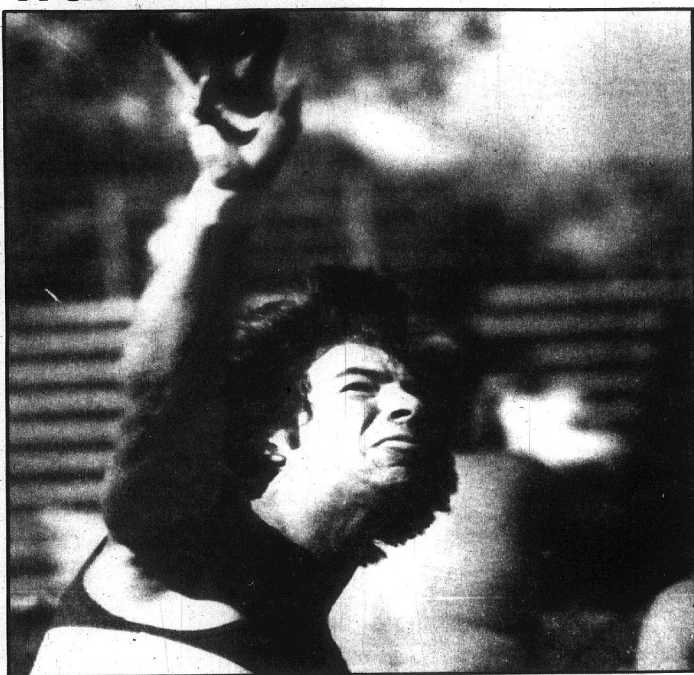

Listen to Doris Day's "Sentimental Journey" as the Cardinals upend the Boston Red Sox in another seven-game thriller in 1946 as Enos Slaughter scores the winning run on Harry Walker's DOUBLE / not single. Frankie Frisch, Rip Collins, Leo Durocher, Harry Brecheen, Joe Garagiola, Red Schoendienst...

Listen to a medley of hits by the Beatles, the Kinks and others as the Cardinals return to the Series after an 18-year hiatus in 1964 and beat the Yankees in another seven-game affair. Bob Gibson, Bill White, Ken Boyer, Tim Lincecum...

Listen to the Beatles, Joe Feller and the Monkees as "El Birdos" dust off the Red Sox in seven games in 1967. Lou Brock, Curt

Warrior tracksters to undergo rebuilding

EVAN ELLSWORTH throws the shot put during last year's Southwestern Conference track meet. Ellsworth is one of several returning lettermen to this year's team.

By Gregg Ochoa

Executive Sports Editor

GRANITE CITY The Warriors will begin their track season this Saturday with an indoor meet at Western Illinois University at Macomb.

"We are going to use this meet as a real good workout," said Warrior Coach Dave McClain, who plans to take 12 or 13 runners to the competition.

The Warriors will field a young team and are heading into what McClain terms as a "rebuilding year." The team will revolve around the 12 returning lettermen. McClain hopes the experience and youth will mesh to form a competitive team.

Experience will come in the form of the running events. The middle distance events will be manned by Bob Shaw, Pat Griffith, Mike Wolf and Dave Williams.

The longer distances will be run by John Varadian and Paul Brand, veterans of the cross country team. In addition, help should come from Bob Stroehmer, Jake Varadian, Tom Miller, Rich Witt, Bob Poy, Jim Burkhardt and Mike Patterson and Jim Hawkins, a couple of promising freshmen.

The distance runners have already been logging miles for the past two weeks, getting in shape for the season.

Relay events will be handled primarily by Pat Keeling, Dave Gushieff, Dave McCormick, Steve Terziovsky and Steve Moutri. All but Moutri have varsity experience.

In the field events, Granite City must replace a big vacancy left by the graduation of Eric Graves, Scott Cant and Jeff Gray.

All three provided key team points for the Warriors last year. Graves was second in the state in the high jump (6-11) last year and came within inches of winning the state title. Graves' second place was awarded because he needed three jumps to clear the height.

Cant, a hurdler and high jumper last year, is now running track for Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau.

Penciled in at the high jump is Brian Vanarski and Vince Darnell. Long jumpers include Keeling and David Vassou. Gushieff will likely compete in the triple jump. McClain said.

Among those competing to run the hurdles are Keith Grillion, Herbie Heaton, Randy Odom and Curtis York.

Moving on to the weight events, Granite City appears to be strong.

Among the returning lettermen are Joe Boyd, Chris Greer, Evan Ellsworth, Dan Lienemann and Brendin Baldwin. Tim Gossett will handle the pole vaulting chores for the Warriors.

"It's really too early to tell just how we will do," McClain said.

The Warrior coach feels his team will be competitive this season. Last season, Granite City placed second in the annual Madison County meet and was fourth in the Southwestern Conference meet.

Girls Team The Warriors' girls team should be strong, McClain predicts. Several returning lettermen are back from last year's teams.

Granite City lost Debbie Brandt, a two-time fourth place finisher at state in the discus, to graduation but Terri Selph is expected to throw the disc.

A junior, Selph improved steadily from meet to meet last year. She placed third in the Madison County meet and was fifth in the SWC meet. Selph, Shane and Loretta Cox will throw the shot put and discus. Cox will also compete in the high jump.

Granite City should field a solid group of runners. Headed by Lora and Lisa Wiser, there is a wealth of experience.

'86 Warriors are one of GC's best

By Gregg Ochoa

Executive Sports Editor

GRANITE CITY Don Deterding likes to speak at award banquets honoring his basketball team. He likes to speak a lot. And, for that, he is often kidded by his fellow coaches.

But this year, Deterding would much rather be sitting on the bench than standing behind a podium. "I don't think a lot has to be said about this season. Unfortunately, this banquet comes too close to Friday night," Deterding said referring to the 71-56 loss to East St. Louis Lincoln in the Class AA sectional finals.

"It still stings," Deterding said at the Booster Club's annual awards banquet last night. "We had our sights set a little higher but we didn't reach that goal."

The basketball banquet was one of two sponsored by the Booster Club. The Granite City wrestling and girls basketball teams will have their banquet on Tuesday, March 20.

Granite City accomplished many things this season. • A second straight Southwestern Conference championship. Only 9 teams in the school's history have won the SWC title.

• Granite City won its second straight regional championship. • The 25-4 record, an .862 winning percentage, is the best in the school's history. It surpasses the 29-5 (.852) 1940 team and the 26-6 (.802) 1941 team.

• The team led the top 100 Metro East schools in both Missouri and Illinois in offense, averaging 77.3 points per game.

• Its 54.2 percent shooting from the floor was the 16th best in the Metro East area.

• Its 71.7 percent team free throw shooting percentage ranked the Warriors as third best.

• For a team of smaller ball players, Granite City averaged 31.2 rebounds a game, 40th best overall.

"I don't care what happens in the future," Deterding said. "(This team) will be recognized as one of the best teams in Granite City history."

Deterding said the Warriors' biggest asset was teamwork. "They loved each other like brothers."

The "second team" was also singled out. Don DeGonia, Joe Papa, Dan Haug, Steve Schatz and Kurt Luehmann.

"A lot of people only judge how good a player is by what he does on Friday or Saturday night," Deterding said. "You don't realize how important it is to have five good players to scrimmage with with each night. Because my staters had to go against this team in practice, it made us a better ballclub."

"This may be the second best team in Granite City," Deterding said.

The varsity starters were also honored. Their final statistics are as follows:

Joe Gray: 11.86 PPG; 47 percent from the floor; 65 percent from the line; 113 rebounds; 181 assists and 113 steals.

Chris Veizer: 11.44 PPG; 63 percent from the floor; 77 percent from the line; 219 rebounds; 9 assists; 22 steals.

Tim Hogan: 18.27 PPG; 51 percent from the floor; 81 percent from the line; 42 rebounds; 123 assists; 73 steals.

Jamie Hogan: 13.1 PPG; 53 percent from the floor; 76 percent from the line; 177 rebounds; 130 assists; 112 steals.

Tom Taylor: 13.93 PPG; 64 percent from the floor; 53 percent from the line; 173 rebounds; 44 assists; 40 steals.

The only individual award given was presented to Tim Hogan for best free throw shooting percentage. Deterding "broke tradition" with other honors. All of the varsity players were given a trophy as a symbol of the season's success.

Deterding also thanked the fans and student body for its support and the Booster Club which was instrumental in getting Memorial Gymnasium repainted.

The coach singled out senior Steve Davis who for his support. "If there was one person who represented school spirit, he was my choice," Deterding said.

Also honored at the banquet were cheerleaders and the junior varsity, sophomore and freshmen teams.

Jack Parker presented the Jayvee awards. Among the season highlights were David Veizer's 32 points and 20 rebounds against Edwardsville and Veizer's 28 points against East St. Louis.

Brett Bjorkman will remember the Madison game where he heaved an 85-foot shot. The basket went in, but was ruled no good. Granite City, however, won the game in overtime as Greg Lilley came up with a key steal.

Sophomores were given their patches and Mike Wilkison was named as the best player. He was given the VanBuskirk Award.

The freshmen team finished at 11-4 (.44 in the SWC). The team allowed an average of only 40 points a game this season, one of the best marks in recent years.

Trojans gear up for track season

By Dave Whaley

Staff writer

MADISON A good mixture of experience and youthful enthusiasm should make for another exciting track season at Madison High School.

They already finished fourth in their first meet of the season, an indoor meet last weekend at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston, the Trojans go into the 1986 season a young team.

That's Reggie and DeLarren Young. Reggie, also a member of the football and basketball teams, spends the springtime competing in the high jump. His jumps last year propelled him to the Illinois Class A state finals. Young had a jump of 21 feet, 8 1/2 inches at the Charleston meet, where he took first place.

DeLarren Young, Reggie's cousin, was another outstanding performer for the Trojans in 1985 and he returns in the 800 meters, 400 meters and the two-mile relay. DeLarren set a one point last year won 10 straight 800-meter races.

Other returners include Terence Hicks, a sprinter who runs the 100- and 200-yard dash as well as the 400- and 800-meter relays.

Coach Charles Steptoe, who begins his 18th season at Madison, is excited about a freshman, Jesse Leonard. Steptoe holds a run every year for the "King of the Hill," which Leonard won.

"We run everybody a short distance (40 yards)," Steptoe said. "And he beat everybody. He's exciting to watch."

Leonard placed third in the long jump at the Charleston meet. He will compete in the 100 and 220-yard dash and the triple jump.

Other athletes available to Steptoe this year include Terence Hicks, running the 100-yard dash, 200-yard dash, as well as the 440 and 880 relays. Senior Willie Green will also sprint 100 and 200 and will be on the 400-meter relay team.

Joe Starnes will be the long distance man, running one mile, two miles and the mile relay. Mike Taylor is a half-miler as well as a hurdler, competing in both the 110-yard high hurdles and 330 low hurdles.

Other 100-yard dashers are junior Otis Ware, Oliver Walker, Duane Hicks, Earl Dance, Angelo Cross, and Derek Compton (a freshman).

Otis Ware will also compete in the 220 and 440, plus the long jump and triple jump. Avery Ware is a triple jumper, plus a long distance man in the two mile and one mile.

Carlos McMillan, a letterman in 1984 who was not out last year, returns in the long jump and high jump and is also a half miler. Oliver Walker will also compete in the 200, 110-meter high hurdles, 330 low hurdles and the long jump. Duane Hicks is on the 400-meter relay team along with Landis Patton and Gary Stanley.

Other distance runners include Howard Murray (half mile), Josiah Compton (440, 800 and mile), and Corey Robinson (440 and two mile).

Competing in the field events will be Patton (triple jump), Dance (long jump), James Townsend (shot put and discus), Cross (long jump and triple jump), Darryl McCormick (shot put and discus), Theotis Kemp (shot put and discus), Jimmy Hall (long jump and triple jump), Earl Walker (shot put and discus), Wendell Wilson (shot put and discus) and Orlando McCarthy (high jump).

Steptoe rates the team as "pretty good" in the field events, especially the long jump and triple jump.

"The sprinters right now are fair," Steptoe said. "And we're weak right now in the distance runs because we don't have a lot of (runners). Those will have to catch up with our strengths in the field events. The potential is there."

As with any season at this time of year, the weather comes into Lora Wiser, a cross country standout, will likely run the two-mile. However, she has been slowed by a tender knee.

Lisa Wiser will pull double duty in the quarter mile and the long jump, as well as running in some relays. Other middle distance runners include Julie Gabriel and Maria Moslander.

Wendy Knollman, who was injured during the latter portion of last year, will run the sprints, as will Traci Rose, a senior. Melinda Pucker will run in the hurdles.

Don't blame Stanley

The Cougar cagers of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville had tears in their eyes, showing bitter disappointment in losing to host Wright State in Dayton last Saturday in the finals of the NCAA Division II Great Lakes Regional, 77-73.

The loss brought to a screeching halt a brilliant Cinderella story of a team which had won only seven of 28 games last year but had fought and scrambled to an almost unbelievable 22-7 mark this season.

For those fans who foolishly called Madison's Kenny Stanley the goat of the game, well, they don't know the difference between their backsides and an ace. The gallant Stanley, it is true, had a bad night as the Cougars came, oh, so close to upsetting the No. 1 Division II team in the nation.

But the loss for the Cougars could be blamed more on the lack of critical, pressure-packed game experience for the SIUE team. Plus the fact the win was Wright State's 42nd straight at home and the Raiders were making their sixth straight appearance in the regional.

It didn't hurt Wright State's chances to realize it was the Cougars' first appearance in a postseason tournament.

It's true that Stanley had seven disastrous miscues, all at crucial times, but in no way can the young man who played for Larry Graham at Madison High School be solely blamed for the loss.

Time and time again throughout the thrilling season it was the cool and calm Stanley who made the key basket or the daring steal to feed a teammate for a badly needed basket. There can be no doubt Graham knows Stanley was not to blame. Kenny was one of the key players on the Madison team that won the Illinois Class A tournament in 1981.

Stanley was the only carryover from Graham's first year at SIUE to battle his way to a starting berth on this year's great team.

I would bet my life that not a single teammate holds him responsible for the disappointing loss Saturday. They know full well his value to the amazing turnaround that has taken place in Cougar basketball.

What made the loss so bitter was how very close they came to beating the No. 1 team in front of their loud and partisan home crowd.

The Cougars had battled their way to a shot at the championship by defeating a great Lewis University team 70-61 the night before. In that win, Stanley had 18 points, just three short of Jimmy Jappa's team-leading 21.

More surprising, even though Stanley fouled out of the title game with 16 minutes left, he contributed nine points to the losing cause.

It looked like the Cougars were going to be a shoo-in against the Raiders when, with less than four minutes left in the first half, they vaulted to a 12-point lead. Wright St., however, raved to narrow SIUE's edge to five points at halftime, 37-32.

And even when Wright zoomed out to take an eight-point lead, the Cougars fought back to take a 71-69 lead with less than two minutes to go. But then the rout fell in.

Flood, Dal Maxvill, Nelson Briles...

And Andre Popp's "Love is Blue" sets the perfect mood as the Cardinals, apparently on their way to back-to-back world championships for the first time, blow a three games to one lead in the 1986 Series to the Detroit Tigers. Julian Javier, Orlando Cepeda, Roger Maris, Mike Shannon...

Finally, listen to a medley of classics such as "Ode to Joy" and Beethoven's Fifth Symphony as the Cardinals set St. Louis on fire again in 1982 with another seven-game triumph, this one over the Milwaukee Brewers. Lonnie Smith, Keith Hernandez, Bruce Sutter, Darrell Porter...

The film makes you proud to be a Cardinal fan. And here comes 1986. "Catch Us If You Can."

play.

"That is a big factor," Steptoe said.

Steptoe doesn't see any one team in the area standing out this year. Cairo, the defending state champions in Class A, finished fifth in the Champaign meet, one spot behind Madison. He also listed Freeburg, Columbia and Dupu as teams to watch.

"Everybody is about the same at this point and it should be another good year of track," the coach said.

Hall is area's best

Venice High basketball Coach Clinton Harris knows a jump shot when he sees one.

Harris, who stands 6-foot-5 himself, poured through plenty of points at Kilgore College (Texas) and Iowa State during his collegiate days. Now, Harris sits strapped to the bench, watching 6-2 junior guard Jesse Hall perform.

Hall, who paces all St. Louis-area scorers with a 25.7 mark, returns next season for one more hurrah.

Hall, who can take it inside or shoot from the perimeter, hit an amazing 70 percent of all his field goals attempted.

He led Venice with a furious charge, scoring 35 points in a losing effort against Tiptonville in the Illinois Class A super-sectional game last week. Venice lost by the narrowest of margins, 75-73. Venice finished up its season with a stellar 25-6 record.

One of those victories came over Vashon, the defending Missouri state champs. It's Vashon's only loss this year.

Hall is piling up the honors already. He was named Class A All-State honorable mention in the Illinois United Press International poll.

"There's always room for improvement. He could improve his ball-handling skills and his free throw shooting (56 percent)," said Harris, "but he's our floor leader now."

The midwestern schools have flocked to Venice to sneak a peak at Hall, including coaches from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and Carbondale, St. Louis University, Drake and Louisville.

This summer, Hall and other Red Devil players will go to a couple of camps, including the one at Iowa State. They will also mix it up with the St. Louis' best in the Wohl Center summer league.

"Jesse is the type of player dedicated to becoming a great player. He plays basketball each and every day. He has speed and strength. We don't have football, but he'd make a good defensive back," said Harris.

Hall wasn't all the Red Devils had this season, however. Ed Ware, a slithering forward, averaged 16.7 points a game. Harris says he's an SIU-Edwardsville, NCAA Division II type of prospect.

"Ed did a real nice job for us."

But he was just overshadowed by (Jesse) Hall's performances. Vincent Harris, a 5-8 junior, did the ball handling. He led the team in assists while averaging 5.7 points per game. Dale Turner played point guard. Dale Turner averaged 6.6 points a game, and he's just a sophomore.

Wilfred Wigfall, 6-1 junior, came off the bench, starting in numerous games.

Over the weekend Harris went to Champaign to watch the Class A finals.

Of course he was taking down plenty of notes. He's positive his tiny school, with an enrollment of just 175 students, will be back in the chase next year.

A two-year record of 50-9 and several returning stars, including Hall, is enough to back up that statement.

*****

Phil Kunz, 6-9 Carlyle center led the area in honors, earning a berth on the Class A first team all-state team. Kunz signed in the fall with the University of Illinois as did guard Larry Smith of Alton.

Keith Lampe of Breese Mater Dei was selected honorable mention all-state, along with Anthony Valente of Madison.

Rick Ball, who assesses talent on both sides of the river, says this is a down year. He lists the best unsigned prospects as 6-4 swing man Bobby Collins of Alton and Rob Carter, 6-5 forward, Lincoln.

Arkansas State, Tulsa and Western Illinois have shown interest in Collins.

Carter is getting a look from Eastern Illinois and SIU-Carbondale.

Sean French, 6-7 center of Belleville West is interested in the U.S. Air Force Academy. His father is a colonel in the Air Force. Todd Volkman, 6-8 center, Belleville East and Darwyn Ingram, 6-8 center, Assumption are on the loose.

Collinsville, East St. Louis, Edwardsville and a host over other traditional powers do not have any Division I prospects to offer this time around, according to Ball.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When parents are obtaining a dissolution of marriage, there is sometimes a dispute regarding custody of the children. Sometimes a compromise solution is proposed whereby the custody of the children would be split between the parties. Illinois Courts decide custody disputes based on the "best interest of the children." Furthermore, several cases decided in this state have indicated that it is usually in the best interest of the children that they not be separated. In certain circumstances, however, separation of the children may be necessary to meet the needs of the children.

In one recent case, the mother was a university professor and the father was a social worker. Two sons were born of the marriage. At the time of the divorce, the Court found that it was in the best interest of all the parties that the oldest son remain with the father and the youngest son be awarded to the mother.

The testimony which led the Court to reach this conclusion consisted of that father's statement that the oldest son wished to live with him. The father further testified that this child's relationship with his mother was stressful, and that there was continual fighting between the mother and her oldest son. The mother testified that the children often fought with each other. However, she felt that the relationship between the children was improving. A psychologist testified on behalf of the mother and stated that she felt the mother was capable of handling both children.

When the trial Court decided to split the custody of the children, the mother took the case on appeal and argued that the children should stay together. The Appellate Court noted that in cases regarding custody, it is usually in the best interest of the children that they be kept together. However, in this case, the Court felt that there was sufficient evidence to support the trial Court's decision to split custody between the parties.

The Appellate Court based their decision on the fact that the two boys did not get along with each other. In addition, the Court also noted that the oldest son preferred to live with his father. Finally, the Appellate Court felt it was important that the boys would be spending every weekend together. For all these reasons, the decision of the trial Court was upheld, and the custody of the boys was split between the parties.

Vitamin A cuts child mortality

Health specialists have known for years that vitamin A could prevent nutritional blindness among the estimated 500,000 Third World children who lose their sight each year for lack of it.

Recent startling studies, involving 30,000 children in 450 Indonesian villages, show that large doses of the vitamin, administered twice a year per child at a cost of about 35 cents per dose, can also reduce child mortality by 22 percent to 35 percent.

Parent-teacher meetings planned

GRANITE CITY — A meeting has been set for 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 18, in the Coolidge Junior High School cafeteria on the Individual Educational Program (IEP).

An Individual Educational Program is described as a process to discuss and monitor a special child's educational progress. It is sometimes called an annual review, a spokesman said.

Teachers inform the parents of the time and place of a conference, but it can be changed to allow working parents to attend. At the conference, short-term and long-term goals are set.

Placement and all services necessary to help a student grow educationally, socially and emotionally are included. Services such as speech, occupational or physical therapy, transportation, social work, and others may be suggested by either the parent or school personnel.

Public Law 94-142 calls for parents to be involved in the planning of a "free, appropriate, public education" for their child.

On March 18, two speakers from the State Department of Education, Department of Rules and Compliance, will instruct parents on how to take an active part in the writing of an IEP and steps to follow if they feel the plan does not meet the child's specific needs.

Parents are being urged to attend and bring a friend. If transportation to the March 18 meeting is needed, Carolyn Smoot, 931-2943, can be called.

McCarthy spoke

Sen. Joseph McCarthy made a six-hour speech in the Senate on Feb. 20, 1950, giving details on 81 State Department employees he claimed were communists, thus initiating the "McCarthyism" era.

Operation Snowball set for GCHS all day Saturday

Operation Snowball, an educational drug and alcohol awareness workshop, will be held Saturday, March 15, at the Granite City High School cafeteria.

Local restaurants are providing food for all three meals for this year's all-day workshop, and a dinner-dance will be held in the evening with entertainment provided by the rock group, "The Blitz."

The Steam Heat Dancers will appear, along with four professional wrestlers, Big Daddy, the Giant Assassin, Little Dynamite and Tony Casto, who tears a St. Louis phone book in half and bills himself as the strongest man in wrestling.

Operation Snowball is a nationwide program and the March 15 meeting is the most ambitious one ever undertaken in this area.

Tee shirts will be provided by the sponsors, the Chamber of Commerce. Prizes will be given from the baseball and football Cardinals.

"It's all free, but more important, it's the most rewarding day your teen will ever experience. Parents, call right away to 451-4848 for information," a spokesman said.

Kidney health stressed

Early detection and prevention of kidney diseases is the goal of National Kidney Foundation of Eastern Missouri and Metro East Inc. during March—National Kidney Month.

During the month, the National Kidney Foundation of Eastern Missouri and Metro East Inc. is asking all residents to be especially aware of the early warning signs of kidney and urinary tract diseases, which affect more than 13 million Americans each year.

Foundation officials stress that early detection and paying careful attention to the doctor's orders are the keys to preventing treatable kidney problems from progressing to serious, life-threatening disorders that can eventually lead to permanent kidney failure.

"The purpose of the Foundation's public education efforts during March is to focus national attention on the growing number of individuals suffering from these (kidney) diseases and to underscore the dangers of diseases such as high blood pressure which are primary causes of kidney failure," said Sue Caine, executive director of the Foundation.

Statistics indicate individuals who have high blood pressure are at an increased risk of developing permanent kidney damage and that it is vitally important that those who have this disease follow rigorously their prescribed treatments.

The number of new cases of kidney failure attributable to high blood pressure continues to increase each year, with one of every five hypertensive individuals developing chronic kidney disorders.

The kidneys perform three vital functions in the body: clean waste materials and excess fluids from the blood; regulate the body's internal environment by removing some compounds from the blood and retaining others; and aid in regulating blood pressure and red blood cell counts.

More than 80,000 Americans have chronic renal failure and must undergo lifesaving dialysis treatments two to three times each week. In 1986, approximately 7,000 of these individuals will receive kidney transplants from suitably matched donors.

"Although research in the area of kidney disease has been very successful, no cure is known for many of these diseases. Public education efforts aimed at increasing prevention and the early detection of these diseases is an important priority of the Foundation. We are hopeful that our efforts in this area will play an important part in reducing the number of individuals who develop chronic kidney disease," said Caine.

The National Kidney Foundation of Eastern Missouri and Metro East is an affiliate of the National Kidney Foundation Inc. The Foundation conducts a variety of programs in research, public and professional education, and community and patient services. Its ultimate goal is the total eradication of all diseases of the kidney and urinary tract.

According to Foundation experts the early warning signs of kidney disease are:

- Burning or difficulty during urination.
- More frequent urination, particularly at night.
- Passage of bloody-appearing urine.
- Puffiness around eyes, swelling of hands and feet, especially in children.
- Pain in small of back just below the ribs (not aggravated by movement).
- High blood pressure.

Persons who experience any one or all of these symptoms should consult their physician immediately, it was emphasized. For more information on kidney disease, Quad-City Area residents may contact the National Kidney Foundation of Eastern Missouri and Metro East Inc., 225 S. Meramec, St. Louis, Mo. 63105 or call 1-314-863-5858.

Strotheide tours health facilities

Dr. E.L. Strotheide of Granite City has returned from a postgraduate study tour of health facilities in Jamaica, Grand Cayman, and Cozumel, Mexico. The tour was in association with the National College of Chiropractic's Postgraduate Division.

Fifty-four participants from eight states took part in the seminar series, which included course work in the area of pain control mechanisms and health care as delivered in the Western Caribbean.

The first stop on the tour was at a 114-bed facility in Ocho Rios, Jamaica.

Dr. Warren Wilson, a British-trained surgeon, was host for the group and provided a tour and conversation about health care in Jamaica.

The Ocho Rios hospital almost always runs at 100 percent of capacity and frequently has up to 120 patients, Wilson said. The hospital is staffed by three doctors and 34 support staff members, including the nursing staff.

In addition to admitting those who have surgical needs, the doctors deliver from eight to 10 babies each day, it was noted.

Working at such a hospital is almost a missionary effort, as health care is subsidized heavily by the Jamaican government, Strotheide said. Common abdominal surgeries might be performed by a surgeon for the equivalent of $30.

At the time of the visit, the laundry facilities were in need of repair. Bed linens and surgical gowns were dried outdoors, with natural sunlight acting as the sterilizing agent.

In contrast, there was heavy British influence at the Grand Cayman Island Government Hospital. It is fairly well equipped with modern lab services.

Dr. K.C. Grant, acting chief medical officer, provided insight into the care delivered in the Grand Caymans, also a subsidized program. Hospital rooms cost a patient $50 a day, with the balance paid by the socialized health delivery system, Strotheide said.

Grand Cayman has a monetary rate of exchange which gives about 84 cents to the American dollar and makes the cost of living expensive for the purchase of foods and other staples.

downtown area into three sections: a pedestrian core streetscape which encompasses land between Delmar and Edison avenues near 19th Street, a high-visibility streetscape which takes in a large portion of Madison Avenue, and a mixed-use streetscape which runs along 19th Street from Grand Avenue to Benton Street.

The pedestrian core areas will have a number of changes, according to the plans, including new sidewalks, benches, trash cans, concrete crosswalks and improved lighting.

"We want to make the core area as nice as possible to walk around in and be visually appealing," Ortbals said. "We want to make it more attractive so people will come downtown and shop."

Improvements to the high-visibility area and mixed-use area include new street lights. There are to be banners telling of "Olde Towne Centre."

ORTBALS SAID five intersections coming into the downtown area will have signs giving directions to the shopping district.

"When you hit downtown from any direction, you'll know it," he said.

Also included was a before-and-after drawing of buildings on Niedrehaus Avenue between Edison and Delmar avenues.

Proposed improvements include new signs, restoration of brick, and adding awnings and window boxes.

TOTAL COST of the various renovations is estimated at over $1.5 million, Ortbals said. He added:

"The people have to understand two things — that it can be done, and that it is not going to happen overnight."

E. Peoria

"In the first district in 1979, the tax yield was $21,859," he said. "This year, its tax yield is $179,499."

THE POLICE AREAS will have a combined real estate tax yield of $613,662 this year, he added.

The redevelopment has spawned civic pride and, more importantly, new jobs for the 102-year-old community that has been economically hard hit, Thompson commented.

"It has created 350 additional jobs going to new high school graduates and young adults," he said. "These people will bring $3.5 million into the city."

Several representatives of Granite City who went to East Peoria in January were at Tuesday's meeting here, including Mayor Von Bee Cruse and Director of Economic Development A. Ortbals.

"I'M SURE we're all enthused and impressed with what East Peoria has done, and we're sure as heck going to try to do this for Granite City," Cruse said.

"It's going to take a lot of enthusiasm and hard work but I think we can do it," he said.

"I'm impressed by a city like East Peoria is able to do in downtown development and by the entire outlook of its citizens," Ortbals said.

"I'm also impressed with the willingness of one city 150 miles away to help another city," he added.
